AT about 8 o'clock this morning the fire alarm was sounded, and the brigade turned out. The fire was at the Thistle skating rink. The chemical engine was soon on the ground, and succeeded in putting the fire out before the steam engine arrived. The fire started in one corner of the club room, and fortunately was discovered before it had made much headway. There had been no person at the rink since last night, and it is supposed some one had thrown the stub of a cigar into the coal box, which stood in the corner, and that it had ignited the coal and smouldered till this morning, when it broke out.

To night the meeting will be a "brothers meeting." On Saturday night there will be a service of song, illustrating the life of the late Mrs. Booth, wife of General Booth. Captain Gooding and Lieutenant Scott have made many friends during their short stay in Edmonton, and several new converts have been added to the ranks of the Army. The amount of money collected during self denial week was more than last year's amount, and though these officers have been here only about four months, they have met with a fair amount of success in their work. Next Wednesday there will be a farewell tea at the barracks, and on Thursday the new officers are expected to arrive and take charge. It is not known yet who the new officers will be.

HOCKEY MATCH.

The hockey match between the Stars and South Edmonton teams on Tuesday was one of the best contested games of the season. The South Edmonton club played well, scoring one goal in the first half, after twenty minutes hard play. On play being resumed the teams were so evenly matched that at the call of half time neither sides, had obtained a second goal. After an intermission the respective teams played from the opposite ends to the ones they had occupied previously. During the last half, play was fast from the start, and the South side won another goal making two to none in favor of South Edmonton, and it looked as if they would have it all their own way, but the Stars then getting down to work, won two goals in about eight minutes and when time was up the game was a tie. The team ageeed to play an extra fifteen minutes, when the Stars won another goal, and the game. The splendid defence put up by McLean and Kelly, of the South Edmonton team, is worthy of special mention and the forwards played well also. Graham of the Stars played well considering it was his first appearance in a match. The success of our team was largely due to Messrs. P. L. McNamara and A. Harrison. The Stars, however, need more team practice, when they will be able to hold their own against all comers. The South Edmonton brass band was in attendance and played well and satisfactorily both during the hockey match, and in the evening.

The senior team plays Fort Saskatchewan on Saturday and South Edmonton on Wednesday next, at the Thistle rink.

LONDON FUR SALES.

At the Hudson's Bay Co.'s fur sales at London this week, rats sold 45 per cent. higher than last October, and 35 per cent. higher than last March. Beaver sold same as October and 5 per cent. higher than last March. These were the only lines offered by them. The list of offerings for this week's sales as compared with last January, shows a marked decrease in the items of mink, muskrat, fox, lynx, wolf and Raccoon; whereas of skunk, not only are the offerings larger, but in addition, the visible supply is materially increased by the new collection and this in the face of a very limited prospective demand for this particular article. Otter, silver and cross fox and fisher will not be sold until March. The Lampson sales were as follows;

Martin, 15% higher than October, and 15% higher than last March.

Black bear, 15% lower than October and 40% lower than last March.

Grizzley bear, 15% lower than October and 55% lower than last March.

Brown bear, 25% lower than October and 55% lower than last March.

Mink, 10 per cent. higher than October and 17½ per cent. higher than March.

Beaver, same as last January.

Rats, 45 per cent. higher than January and 55 per cent. than October.

CANADA AND THE EMPIRE.

The threats of war recently made by the United States and Germany in regard to matters in which neither had even a remote material interest, have rudely awakened the British people from a dream of universal and perpetual peace—accompanied by British commercial aggrandizement—in which a great part of them have indulged for many years. That they received the second warning and thereby became thoroughly awakened has been the best thing ever happened, for they now realize their position, as being not one of complete security as they had believed, but of imminent danger. Desiring to live at peace with all men, and feeling themselves more than a match for any single nation, they saw nothing to fear. Now they know that their desire for peace has been taken universally for cowardice, that their non-interference with their neighbors, affairs will not ward off interference by their neighbors in theirs; and that at any moment they may be called upon to face not a single power, but the world in arms. And after all there is nothing strange that it should be so. Britain's empire has grown so great and is so spread over the world that it necessarily jostles the possessions of every other great power; the more so because the tendency is continually towards further expansion. If there are any important countries which have no boundary dispute with Britain they are still subject to the aggression of British commerce. As Britain's hand is against that of every other nation in colonizing and in commerce, what is more natural than that other nations feeling themselves worsted in the arts of peace should be ready to try those of war—on the occurence of a favorable opportunity. But Britain and Britain's empire and commerce is not only a standing grievance to every other great power; it is a standing temptation. Could Britain be worsted in fight, what booty would fall to the victors! What valuable dependencies to be apportioned, what vast ransoms to be paid, what cities to sack! There is to-day in England the greatest aggregation of wealth that ever was in the world. What a prize it would be to another Conqueror! No matter how great an empire may be built up and no matter how just the principles by which it is governed in its internal and external relations, unless its material greatness can in the last resort be backed up by the military prowess of its people, it is only a house of cards—a standing invitation to everyone to come and knock it down. Fortunately for the advancement of civilization and the good of the world, although the British empire as it exists to-day is the result of commercial rather than of military achievement, Britain has ever been ready to hold by the sword what she won by the plow, and as the events of the past few weeks have shown was never more ready, and never better prepared, to do so than at the present moment.

In case of war Baitain's greatest danger would be her colonies and dependencies, and of the colonies Canada is the greatest danger. Indeed it can only be considered as Britain's weakest and perhaps most vital spot. Lying alongside a numerous, wealthy and powerful nation, which avowedly looks upon Canada's separate existence as a menace to its commercial and political supremacy, Britain has time and again yielded to demands made by the United States which would never have been listened to were it not for the dangerous position of Canada. As the demands were almost universally upon some interest of Canada this country has been the chief loser by reason of her position as a bone of contention between the two great powers. It is time that Canada in her own interest as well as in that of the empire placed herself in such a position as to be a strength rather than a weakness to the empire, and a menace rather than a temptation to the United States. Only in that case can we reasonably expect our rights to be maintained to their full extent by the full strength of the British empire. We pride ourselves on our commercial aggressiveness. But as in the case of the Empire so in that of the colony, commercial aggression means the arousing of antagonism and the possible making of quarrels. Canada should therefore be ready to take her own part as a worthy member of the British empire, at least in her own quarrels. By putting herself in that position she will be treated with greater consideration by both friends and foes. Canada as a citadel of British power would hold a very different position, both in the eyes of Britain and the United States, from Canada as a mere something to be bought or sold, or to be held by which ever happened for the time to be the stronger. The British empire has grown so great that its dependencies—and Canada more than any other dependency—must be prepared to play their several parts in the game, otherwise the empire has become too unwieldly to stand successfully a combined attack such as was in prospect only a week ago; and may yet become a fact.

SIR CHARLES TUPPER.

Now that the prospective premiership of Sir Charles Tupper has been practically announced, it becomes a matter of interest to every Canadian as to what manner of man this new ruler is to be. What has he done in the past, so that we may judge of what he is likely to do in the future? He is an old man and he has been in public life for a long time. It will be for his friends and supporters to show what he has done to justify placing in his hands the destinies of the Dominion. As the price of his party services in the past he holds the office of high commissioner of Canada in England, at a salary of some $40,000, equal, or almost equal, to that of the governor-general of the Dominion. Canada is not so rich that it can afford to pay such a large pension for even the most valuable party services, unless fair service to the country accompanies it. The services supposed to be rendered Canada by Sir Charles Tupper in England were the promotion of a desirable immigration to Canada and the protection and advancement of Canada's important trade interests in England. That there is room for valuable services in these particulars is undoubted, but that such services have been rendered remains to be shown. The reign of Sir Charles Tupper in London has seen the turning of British emigration almost entirely from Canada, and its direction to other and more distant fields; has seen the greatest possible restriction put upon the Canadian cattle trade by compelling the slaughter of Canadian cattle on arrival at British ports; and has seen a like restriction placed, or about to be placed, upon the sheep trade. If Sir Charles were the heaven born genius that his admirers assert he could surely have done something in these matters; and if his knowledge and skill and diplomacy, and the fact of his having the Canadian cabinet at his back, were not equal to the task, wherein lies the assurance that he can manage the premiership of the country any more to the country's advantage? Another matter in which he took a very prominent part was the Anglo-French treaty which affected Canada so adversely that the government led by Sir John Thompson, of which Foster was a member, refused to ratify it, and in fact held back the proper and necessary ratification of parliament for a year. Possibly Mr. Foster's appreciation of the genius of Tupper dates from the time of his (Foster's) conversion to the belief that the treaty which he at one time denounced as directly injurious to the interests of Canada, was somthing that Canada could not get along without, and therefore asked parliament to ratify it. No doubt Mr. Foster thought that the man who could so easily and thoroughly bamboozle him and make him contradict himself, was the very man whom the conservative party required to bamboozle the farmers into believing that the national policy was making them rich.

THE MILITIA.

In the house of commons on Jan. 16th, when the speech from the throne, in which some references were made to the necessity of putting the militia and defences of the country in a proper state of efficiency was considered, Hon. Wilfrid Laurier, leader of the Liberals, said that he coincided with with the government in so far as the desirability of taking all precautions went. He feared that the government however, had inserted the paragraph in question in a spirit of jingoism. The Liberal party believed that the militia should be armed with the best weapons. To send them into service with the old Snider-Enfield rifle with which four-fifths of the militia were armed would be little short of murder. A speedy change should be made in the weapon furnished. Canada's motto should be "Defence, not defiance."

Hon. G. E. Foster said that Mr. Laurier had voiced the sentiment of the whole house and of the country. It was the duty of parliament to put the best and newest arms in the hands of the militia and to see that they were well taken care of and equipped in this respect.

GENERAL NEWS.

Free Press on the result of the Manitoba elections: "The real intentions of Manitobans have no foundation in ill will to any part of her population; but these intentions have so far had no opportunity to be manifested. The province has practically been on her defence for the last five years; and until the struggle to maintain what she deems her rights is ended, a dispassionate consideration of the grievances of the minority can hardly be expected. When, however, the threat of coercion is removed, as ultimately it must be, the sense of justice of Manitobans will be found as active as it is in any part of the Dominion; and a readiness will be shown to remove all just cause of complaint against our school laws. The ministers have expressed themselves to this effect during the campaign; and the sense of the people would in any case require that everything consistent with provincial control of a national system of schools should be done to this end.

AGRICOLA.

Amongst other pecularities of the administration of the affairs of the department of the interior is the importation of foreigners who appear to be destitute on their arrival here, and who have to be maintained by the department during the present winter. In view of the present plethoric state of the supply of laborers, it is a very serious error to bring people here who cannot by any possibility prove self-supporting for at least two years unless the demand for laborers increases enormously. The situation reveals the fact that the destitute foreign population of Europe are brought here at merely nominal rates of passage and on their arrival are supported at the public expense, while the Canadian farmer residing in the eastern provinces, who is generally prepared to bring with him the necessary outfit for farming, one of whom, as a pioneer, being worth half a dozen foreigners, does not receive the slightest inducement in the way of reduction in passenger or freight rates to Alberta. This is indeed a remarkably peculiar policy. The American immigrant who never contributed a cent to the cost of the C. P. R. can travel for just half the fare charged to the Canadian who has paid heavily for the construction of the road over which he rides. The same remark applies to freight rates. While we are so unfortunate as to possess a mere figure head as our representative at Ottawa such as Mr. Davis, and a failure of such colossal proportions as Mr. Daly as minister of the interior, we can hope for no alleviation of the present conditions; nor can we forget the apathy exhibited by our legislators in Regina relating to immigration matters.

Thousands of the best farmers in the world, as Ontario farmers undoubtedly are, are eager to come west, but have not the means to bring with them their outfit, without which they could not come; but being true Canadians they are denied any privilege of reduced rates. Such is the dictum of the C. P. R. divested of all departmental humbug. We have already a great many struggling settlers who came here mostly from the United States in '94 and '95, very few of whom are possessed any means whatever What we want now is to attract a class of settlers who will concentrate the volume of production, which in the near future will undoubtedly vastly exceed the demand. Our country has now reached a stage when stagnation is imminent unless steps are taken to provide its development by those whose duty it should be to carefully conserve the immature though rapidly increasing sources of production in the country. Our legislators appear to be devout believers in the theory of evolution, but the average man does not have time to wait for such a slow process, and anxiously looks to the powers that be to apply the necessary stimulation.

Jan. 11th, '96.

TO COERCE MANITOBA.

The most remarkable feature of the debate in the house on Jan. 16th. was the theory advanced by Mr. Powell, of Westmoreland in moving the adoption of the address that provincial autonomy is largely imaginary and that in reality, the provinces are subject to federal domination, the same as England, Ireland and Scotland are to the imperial parliament. This pronouncement fell as a great surprise upon the house, and it was apparent by the almost absolute silence in which it was received that the utterance elicited little or no credence. He said that the remedial order was not given in a coercive, but a pacific spirit, and it was regrettable it had not been received in the same spirit. Manitoba's reply was an able document, but he submitted it was not in harmony with the constitution of this country. Manitoba took a stand broadly and squarely on the ground of provincial autonomy. She declared that she would not let the federal flag fly anywhere in that province in respect to this matter, and all her guns had been opened upon every part of the federal fortress. Mr. Powell argued that federal supremacy and dominance breathed the very genius of the compact between the provinces. He denied that there was to be found in the constitution any principle of provincial autonomy. That principle might be desirable as a legislative policy, but had no constitutional force. He commended that as a corrective power had been lodged with the federal authorities, that power was to be observed and abided by, just as clearly and loyaly as any other legislative power possessed by the Dominion parliament. His position was unequivocally supporting a full measure of remedial legislation, and appealing to the people of Manitoba to give a loyal adherence to the federal compact. He reminded them of the fact that the older provinces had expended millions of dollars in developing their country.

McGillivray, of North Ontario, in seconding the motion, went through the clauses of the address categorically, but carefully refrained from reference to the school question.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the BULLETIN:

SIR—There are certain reports circulated in town to the effect that I am the person who is entering a protest against the election of certain members of the town council. I wish to be distinctly understood when I say that I have nothing to do with any election protest, either directly or indirectly, and never authorized or paid any person to do so. As I mentioned in my address to the ratepayers, if they thought I had done my duty they would vote for me, and if not I would stay at home, where I am at present minding my own business, and I hope that those parties who so freely connected my name with that protest will do the same.

I am, yours truly,
J. H. PICARD.

NEW BICYCLE CLUB.

A meeting of local cyclists was held last night in the store of the Edmonton Hardware Co. for the purpose of forming a bicycle club. J. D. McBride was voted to the chair, and after some discussion it was resolved to form a club to be called the North Star Bicycle Club, and to affiliate with the Canadian Wheelmen's Association.

The following gentlemen signed the roll and paid the membership fee: J. D. McBride, W. H. Clarke, J. A. Stovel, C. M. Woodworth, J. G. Fairbanks, A. H. Goodwin, E. Casey, G. Corriveau, T. Hourston and J. Laurencelle.

The club was then declared duly formed, and officers were elected as follows: President, J. D. McBride; vice-president, C. M. Woodworth; secretary-treasurer, W. H. Clarke; captain, J. G. Fairbanks; lieutenant, J. A. Stovel; bugler, G. Corriveau. It was decided to limit the number of active male members to twelve, and to admit an equal number of lady cyclists as members. A committee was appointed to draft by-laws. The colors adopted are red, white and blue, and the badge to be a five point star with blue enamel points, and centre to be red ground with a white "N" in the centre. The club dress for men is to be dark blue knickerbockers and stockings, and white sweater. The declared objects of this new club are to encourage cycling for touring, racing, etc., and to promote emulation amongst members of Edmonton clubs.

Doing Business.

On and after January 1st, 1896, our books will be closed, and hereafter we will do business for cash only. This will enable us to give you more for your money, because we will avoid the expense of keeping books, the time it takes to collect accounts, and the occasional loss incidental to the credit system. We often hear the remark "That man is as good as gold," but this is untrue. Gold will pay our drafts, and a book debt will not; and nobody ever loved us better because they owed us. On the contrary if they are unable or unwilling to pay they avoid us and pay their cash to our competitors.

At the inauguration of this new scheme we will offer our entire stock of Winter Goods, comprising the latest styles in
